Past (Im)perfect Continuous. Trans-Cultural Articulations of the Postmemory of WWII presents an international and interdisciplinary approach to the comprehension of the postmemory of WWII, accounting for a number of different intellectual trajectories that investigate WWII and the Holocaust as paradigms for other traumas within a global and multidirectional context. Indeed, by exceeding the geographical boundaries of nations and states and overcoming contextual specificities, postmemory foregrounds continuous, active, connective, transcultural, and always imperfect representations of violence that engage with the alterity of other histories and other subjects. 75 years after the end of WWII, this volume is primarily concerned with the convergence between postmemory and underexamined aspects of the history and aftermath of WWII, as well as with several sociopolitical anxieties and representational preoccupations. Drawing from different disciplines, the critical and visual works gathered in this volume interrogate the referential power of postmemory, considering its

Excerpt from The Lost New Testament Book: Restored Through Spirit Agency; Professedly a Continuation of the Acts of the Apostles Down to the Death of St. Peter and St. Paul, by Luke, and Given to the World by Spirit Theophilus, Through the Hand of the Psychic He then faded from my vision and I was at once addressed by a clear voice as of some person directly in front of me, who said that visible presentation was unnecessary, as I could not know him and it might distract my attention from his message, which would demand great care and accuracy in its reception and relation. He told me that he was Theophilus, so surnamed when on earth to indicate his love of God; prison, chiefly from repeated ill-treatment, as did one of his companions; the third one suffered a public martyr dom. He said that this was not the only book of Scripture that had been lost nor the, only one re stored, both for a wise purpose; that the loss of this one had given rise to the legend of the holy grail; that the time has arrived for the restoration of this book, in View of the movement to perfect a league of the nations, prophesied in the book, for the attain ment of enduring peace and the gospel state of good will; that the league is regarded, in the spirit world, as the greatest practical step, imperfect as it nat urally is, toward the realization of the time-long yearning of all good people for a better state of life on earth, than has yet been concerted by the nations. He said he would give the book in English because the gospel has been more widely disseminated by English-speaking peoples than by the others; more over, the principles of the League of Nations, of such great interest to the Spirit World, have had their first explicit expression in that language. He further said that the English tongue now holds the same position, but in a much larger sense, than the Greek formerly held, of predominance as the language of travel and commerce, and that it would hereafter be the chief medium for declaring to humanity the Divine purpose and counsel.
